

Citizens, cyclists or not, will not tolerate the type of programming that advocates violence against others on the road. Clear Channel should not be allowed to promote violence against bicyclists or any others. That is probably the most stupid dialogue I have ever heard of being broadcast on the radio. What were they thinking? And what was their management thinking to allow such remarks?